INVITE MONEY CZARS TO HELP DRAFT FARM AID BILL

BILLIONAIRES ARE ASKED TO MEET SENATE

Rockefeller, Morgan, Mellon,
Ford and Schwab May Give Their Advice.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The most spectacular move ever made in behalf of agriculture, the four richest men in America—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew W. Mellon and Henry Ford—were asked today to help congress solve the farm problem.

The names of these four billionaires—probably the four richest men in the world—topped a list of financial, industrial and labor leaders sent telegraphic invitations to participate in the deliberations of the senate agriculture committee over a new farm relief bill. If they accept, the farmers of America will have the nation's financial and industrial "brains" at their disposal in drafting a program of agricultural relief.

OTHERS INVITED

Beside Rockefeller, Morgan, Mellon and Ford, the committee invited Paul M. Warburg, famous international banker and active head of Kuhn, Loeb and Co.; Owen D. Young, head of the General Electric Co. and America's reparation expert; Charles M. Schwab, the retired steel capitalist; President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor and other leaders in industry and labor. All were urged to confer with the senate committee at the earliest opportunity.

The invitations were suggested by Senator Thomas (R) of Idaho, and heartily endorsed by other members of the committee. Senator McNary (R) of Oregon, chairman, forwarded the invitations.

If the financial and industrial czars accept, an effort will be made to arrange a single conference which all might attend.

TREMENDOUS WEALTH

If Rockefeller, Morgan, Mellon and Ford sat down at the same table, it would bring $4,000,000,000 of wealth, at least, into a single room. If Warburg, Young and Schwab were present, too, their combined wealth probably would exceed $5,000,000,000. They would bring, too, the cream of the nation's financial, economic and industrial ability. If they could agree on a single remedy, agriculture undoubtedly would be projected to its economic feet with amazing celerity.

There are several "buts" to the picture. Some members of the senate committee expressed doubt whether the invited guests would come to Washington to help congress draft a farm bill. There was a feeling that, while the economic czars recognized the necessity for stabilizing agriculture, they would feel the problem of formulating relief was outside their provinces.

WILL AID CONGRESS

One beneficial effect of the proposed conference, whether or not they accept their invitations, will be to clear the atmosphere somewhat in congressional circles. For the last four years, congress has attempted to enact the McNary-Haugen bill into law with the much discussed equalization fee as its principal feature. On three occasions, it met with presidential vetoes at the hands of Calvin Coolidge. The fee was virtually abandoned in the last presidential campaign.

Now with the fee out of way, Pres. Hoover has told congress to go ahead and draft a new bill. He has declined to proffer any specific plan of relief. If the economic leaders also decline to make suggestions, farm leaders may feel free to revive the equalization fee.

DOG GOES AFTER MAIL FOR OWNER

LONDON, O., March 27.—A dog on the farm of Bob Roscher, former big league baseball player, living three miles north of here, scares Joe Tway, rural mail carrier, the trouble of personally delivering the mail to the house box. Each morning, according to Tway, the dog is waiting at the side of the road for the mail. If the delivery consists of letters and papers, the dog takes them in his mouth.

In case of a package or a box, the dog will trot to the house, drop the letters on the porch and then return and carry or drag the weight.

MAYOR WARNS AUTO DRIVERS

Traffic Laws Must Be Obeyed —Driving Privileges Will Be Taken.

Warning that the city ordinances against reckless and careless driving of automobiles, their operation with the cut-outs open and running through red traffic signal lights will be rigidly enforced, was made Wednesday by Mayor B. T. Hedges.

His announcement followed his action Tuesday night in depriving Lloyd Ferguson and Royce Wolfe, of Logan-st., for their driving rights for six months.

The two men, arrested by Officer McManamy, are said to have been driving their autos on Mound-st. in a careless manner and with the cut-outs open.

The arrival of spring, with the resulting use by all motorists of their autos and the large number of machines passing through Circleville as the touring season opens, are the reasons for Mayor Hedges clamping down the lid on traffic violators, he said Wednesday.

Mayor Hedges declared that motorists found guilty of reckless driving can henceforth look forward to fines and the suspension of their driving privileges. Violation of prohibited auto driving will result in further prosecution of the case, Mayor Hedges said.

COUNCIL ENDS ARGUMENT ON HOSPITAL SITE

Votes as Committee of Whole
To Purchase Myers Property On North Side.

The controversy which has existed over the location of the Circleville municipal hospital has been settled.

The settlement came at an adjourned meeting of council Tuesday when the councilmen, acting as a committee of the whole, reported favorably on a resolution authorizing the purchase of the Myers property on N. Pickaway-st.

City Solicitor Paul Adkins reported that he had examined and approved the abstract submitted by Judge I. N. Abernethy for the 4.235 acres of land to be purchased from Mary E. Myers and others on which to erect the hospital.

$4,000 FOR PURCHASE

A resolution directing the purchase by the city of the site for $4,000 was introduced and read for the first time. Councilman Will made a motion, which was seconded, that council take a recess to consider the resolution, and the motion was carried. W. F. Baker, president pro tem, appointed Mr. Will chairman of the recessed session.

With a delegation of citizens headed by H. M. Grites and Rev. H. D. Welch, who oppose the Myers site, the councilmen discussed the question of the location, the cost of the ground, the fact that Charles Niles had donated two lots for a hospital site, the advantages of the suggested east side site, the additional expense if the Myers site was selected, and other issues concerning the site.

VOTE FOUR TO THREE

At the conclusion of the recess, council was called to order and Mr. Will reported by offering a motion that council purchase the Myers site. Councilman Marion offered a motion, which was seconded, that the report be adopted. The motion was passed by a vote of four to three. Those voting in the affirmative were Councilmen Marion, Leist, Neuding and Will. The negative votes were cast by Councilmen Barnes, Baker and Henn.

The resolution authorizing the purchase of the Myers site will have two more readings before it comes up for the final passage.

The public safety committee recommended that repairs be made to the pumper of the fire department, but asked for further time in which to report on the request for "additional firemen." An ordinance appropriating the sum of $250 for outdoor relief was passed under suspension of the rules.

The rehearsals for the Sunday evening pageant will follow the evening services.

ILLINOIS CITY AROUSSED OVER SLAIN WOMAN

Legality Of Search Warrant
Used By Dry Raiders Is Being Questioned.

AURORA, ILL., March 27.—With the entire city of Aurora stirred to a frenzy over the killing of Mrs. Joseph DeKing in her home by dry raiders, and with the citizens demanding a thorough sifting of facts and the fixing of responsibility, two routine investigations were under way today.

One is being directed by Coroner Herman J. Vierke, whose only official interest is with the slaying.

The other is headed by State's Attorney George Carberry of Kane co. who through the grand jury will inquire not only into the killing of Mrs. DeKing and the wounding of one of the raiders by her 12-year-old son, but also into the question of the legality of the raid.

State's Attorney Carberry, who was elected on a "dry reform" ticket pledged to mop up Kane co. is quoted as saying that he is 100 per cent behind the raiders.

ACTION DEMANDED

The action took place in the dining room of the DeKing home after the raiders forced entrance to search for liquor. They claim they found a gallon of wine in the house.

Robert A. Milroy, formerly an assistant United States attorney, now counsel for the DeKing family, declared that unless immediate action is taken against the raiders, whom he accused of "wanton murder," he will petition for a special grand jury and the appointment of a special prosecutor to take the case out of Carberry's hands.

Meanwhile, said Carberry, there will be no arrests—neither of Smith, in connection with the killing, nor of DeKing, for resisting the raiders.

The most vital question, it is agreed, is the legal aspect of the raid—whether DeKing was acting within his rights when, with a pistol in each hand, he undertook to drive the raiders from his premises. They had a search warrant, but whether they displayed it is in dispute. Also two questions have arisen as to the warrant itself.

WARRANT QUESTIONED

It was a John Doe warrant, issued by Magistrate J. Weber on the strength of an affidavit by Boyd Fairchild, a state's attorney's investigator. Fairchild described the purchase of one pint of liquor, March 16.

In Fairchild's affidavit, the premises to be searched were described as "a two-story house" and the location given was, in a general way, the DeKing home. DeKing's house, however, is not a two-story but a story and a half structure.

The second, and perhaps more important question in connection with the warrant, was raised by Attorney Milroy.

"That warrant was used twice," he declared. "The raiders made two visits to my clients' home. If the warrant was good for the first raid it certainly was not good for the second. If a warrant could be used thus repeatedly, then a single warrant would enable an officer to hound a man indefinitely." Magistrate Weber himself admitted that Milroy was right in his contention that a warrant cannot be used twice.

FARMER IS BURNED

LANCASTER, March 27.—H. Ruffner, a farmer living near Pleasantville, was burned yesterday when he pushed into his burning home in an attempt to save photographs of his children taken when they were babies. The home was destroyed with $10,000 damage.

Circleville Is Only Ten Hours From Gotham, Commerce Group Is Told

Aviation Speeds Service Between Two Cities, Express Expert Says.

How the railway express has changed the diet of the American people during its development from one man carrying parcels in a haversack to an organization operating over 256,000 miles of track and in the air, was told to members of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night by J. C. Graebing, Columbus, superintendent of the district from Pittsburgh to Chicago of the Railway Express Agency.

He said the company now employs 125,000 men, operates 11,000 trucks, has 5,000 horses, works on 12,500 trains daily, and averages 200,000,000 shipments a year. The value of shipments expressed nightly out of New York City alone amounts to $20,000,000, he declared.

10 HOURS FROM N. Y.

Mr. Graebing said that through its aviation branch, which connects all principal cities of the country, the express company can send a package from Circleville at 6 o'clock in the evening and get it in New York city at 4 o'clock the following morning. The package would go to Columbus, then to Cleveland, and then to New York.

Through the express company the American people have been changed through the air to the main seasonable goods during any month of the year. Mr. Graebing declared. He was self-governing cars bring the products from the southland to the north and the shipment of foodstuffs, raw materials, machinery, and other goods during January and February fresh spinach was brought from Texas.

Mr. Graebing said the merchants to use the express for their shipments.

their shipments as the saving of a 50 cents on a container may lose a $100 customer if the container is too cheap to stand the trip.

STORES WILL CLOSE

President George Fitzpatrick announced that most of the stores in Circleville will be closed between 2 and 3 o'clock Friday afternoon to permit employees to attend special Good Friday church services.

The Chamber of Commerce voted to send a letter to the Ohio Utilities commission urging that the Scioto Valley Traction Co. be permitted to augment its traction passenger service with a bus line between Chillicothe and Columbus and to deny the right to the Cannonball Transportation Co.

A. C. Moore, manager of the Mid-West Box Co., was designated by President Fitzpatrick as a delegate to the national convention of the Chamber of Commerce at Washington in April.

FORMER RESIDENT ESCAPES MEXICANS

Little did the folks of Circleville think when they were reading of the recent rebellion in Mexico that one of their former residents, Bob Valentine, was running blither and yon down there, trying to avoid the bullets of the many "mushketry" Bob who now lives in California, travels for a canning company there, and his route takes him to Mexico.

His sister, Miss Ella Valentine, Los Angeles, frantically tried to locate him knowing that he was in the direct path of the rebel army. She did not receive a single assuring message. Finally after many days of worry Bob arrived home with a bullet in his clothes. He tried to explain that he had sent her word when he had managed to get out. The telegrams arrived by mail several days after he reached home.

HOLD-UPS AND ROBBERIES IN ALLEGED LIST

Robert McClaren Confesses
Many "Jobs," Circleville
Police Say.

A career of crime, on which he started at the age of 11 years and which has included a hold-up, safe blowings, store robberies, and automobile thefts within the past three years, has been confessed by Robert McClaren, 19, of Walnut-st., according to local police.

McClaren, who is now in the Pickaway-co jail in default of $1,000 bond to await the April grand jury, is said to have given a verbal confession of his crimes to Officers William McCrady and Fred Fitzpatrick, which he supplemented by a written confession given to Prosecutor Emmitt Crist.

His recital of law breakings solves many crimes committed in and near Circleville. Although evidence had often indicated him as a suspect, police say his career came about through women with whom he has associated. He was arrested by Officer McCrady and bound over to the grand jury by Mayor B. T. Hedges.

STARTED WHEN 11

McClaren, who has served terms in the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster, first went there when he was 11 years old after he had robbed the Clarence Wolfe grocery. His other three terms were served for automobile thefts.

Last summer, while serving his fourth term, he escaped and enjoyed freedom for three weeks until arrested by Officer McCrady. In his confession to the local police Tuesday night, McClaren said to have admitted safe blowing, store robberies, four store robberies and two filling station robberies in that time.

The stores he robbed last summer, according to his reported confession, included the Phoenix store at Pherson and the Urton, H. M. Root and Joe Moats stores in Circleville. He is said to have committed robbery at the junction of the Chillicothe and Kingston roads and the Charles Bass filling station in Circleville.

HIDDEN LOOT FOUND

Last summer loot, identified to have been taken in these robberies, were found hidden in a boat on the Scioto river, in the H. M. Crites' barn south of Circleville and in the Dave Dunlap shed south of Haysville. McClaren admitted he hid it in those places, police say.

SEA FREEDOM IS BIG ISSUE

Sharp Disagreement Is Seen Ahead Between America and Great Britain.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—So serious are the international complications growing out of the coast guard's sinking of the Canadian auxiliary schooner Im Alone by gunfire, that the whole question of the freedom of the seas threatens to be injected into the negotiations between the Canadian and British governments and the state department.

Moving cautiously to be sure of their facts, the Canadians and British are preparing to confront Secretary of State Stimson—he will have taken over his duties by that time—with notes sent the British government in 1914-15 on the very issues brought up by the fate of the Im Alone.

The coast guard, according to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, acted under the tariff act of 1922 which extended the territorial jurisdiction of the United States to the twelve-mile limit. Under date of December 26, 1914, this government is on record as not recognizing "presumptions" set up by Great Britain in connection with seizure of vessels for the purpose of examination under municipal authority contrary to international law.

The British declare the American tariff act is in the nature of a municipal act in the international law sense, and that they are not ready to concede the three-mile limit rule of international law authorizing "not pursuit" to extended by American courts.

ILLINOIS CITY AROUSSED OVER SLAIN WOMAN

Legality Of Search Warrant
Used By Dry Raiders Is Being Questioned.

AURORA, ILL., March 27 — With the entire city of Aurora stirred to a frenzy over the killing of Mrs. Joseph DeKing in her home by dry raiders, and with the citizens demanding a thorough sifting of facts and the fixing of responsibility, two routine investigations were under way today.

One is being directed by Coroner Herman J. Vierke, whose only official interest is with the slaying. The other is headed by State's Attorney George Carberry of Kane co. who through the grand jury will inquire not only into the killing of Mrs. DeKing and the wounding of one of the raiders by her 12-year-old son, but also into the question of the legality of the raid.

State's Attorney Carberry, who was elected on a "dry reform" ticket pledged to mop up Kane-co. is quoted as saying that he is 100 per cent behind the raiders.

ACTION DEMANDED
The action took place in the dining room of the DeKing home after the raiders forced entrance to search for liquor. They claim they found a gallon of wine in the house.

Robert A. Milroy, formerly an assistant United States attorney, now counsel for the DeKing family, declared that unless immediate action is taken against the raiders, whom he accused of "wanton murder," he will petition for a special grand jury and the appointment of a special prosecutor to take the case out of Carberry's hands.

Meanwhile, said Carberry, there will be no arrests—neither of Smith, in connection with the killing, nor of DeKing, for resisting the raiders.

The most vital question, it is agreed, is the legal aspect of the raid—whether DeKing was acting within his rights when, with a pistol in each hand, he undertook to drive the raiders from his premises. They had a search warrant, but whether they displayed it is in dispute. Also two questions have arisen as to the warrant itself.

WARRANT QUESTIONED
It was a John Doe warrant, issued by Magistrate J. Weber on the strength of an affidavit by Boyd Fairchild, a state's attorney's investigator. Fairchild described the purchase of one pint of liquor, March 16.

In Fairchild's affidavit, the premises to be searched were described as "a two-story house" and the location given was, in a general way, the DeKing home. DeKing's house, however, is not a two-story but a story and a half structure.

The second, and perhaps more important question in connection with the warrant, was raised by Attorney Milroy.

"That warrant was used twice," he declared. "The raiders made two visits to my clients' home. If the warrant was good for the first raid it certainly was not good for the second. If a warrant could be used thus repeatedly, then a single warrant would enable an officer to hound a man indefinitely."

Magistrate Weber himself admitted that Milroy was right in his contention that a warrant cannot be used twice.

FARMER IS BURNED

Circleville Is Only Ten Hours From Gotham, Commerce Group Is Told

Aviation Speeds Service Between Two Cities, Express Expert Says.

How the railway express has changed the diet of the American people during its development from one man carrying parcels in a haversack to an organization operating over 266,000 miles of track and in the air, was told to members of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night by J. C. Graebing, Columbus, superintendent of the district from Pittsburgh to Chicago of the Railway Express Agency.

He said the company now employs 125,000 men, operates 11,000 trucks, has 8,000 horses, works on 12,500 trains daily, and averages 200,000,000 shipments a year. The value of shipments expressed nightly out of New York City alone amounts to $50,000,000, he declared.

10 HOURS FROM N. Y.
Mr. Graebing said that through its aviation branch, which connects all principal cities of the country, the express company can send a package from Circleville at 6 o'clock in the evening and get it in New York City at 4 o'clock the following morning. The package would go by train to Columbus where it would be taken in a specially designated auto to Norton field. There is would be sent to Cleveland in time to catch an east-bound trunk line plane to New York where another special automobile would deliver it immediately to its address.

Through the express company, the American diet has been changed through the ability to obtain seasonable vegetables during any month of the year. Mr. Graebing declared. Express refrigerators carry the vegetables from the southland. He said the first shipment of Louisiana strawberries starts north next week and during January and February fresh spinach was brought from Texas.

Mr. Graebing urged the merchants to use good containers for their shipments as the saving of a 50 cents on a container may lose a $100 customer if the container is too cheap to stand the trip.

STORES WILL CLOSE

President George Fitzpatrick announced that most of the stores in Circleville will be closed between 2 and 3 o'clock Friday afternoon to permit employees to attend special Good Friday church services.

The Chamber of Commerce voted to send a letter to the Ohio Utilities commission urging that the Scioto Valley Traction Co. be permitted to augment its traction passenger service with a bus line between Chillicothe and Columbus and to deny the right to the Cannonball Transportation Co.

A. C. Moore, manager of the Mid-West Box Co., was designated by President Fitzpatrick as a delegate to the national convention of the Chamber of Commerce at Washington in April.

FORMER RESIDENT ESCAPES MEXICANS

Little did the folks of Circleville think when they were reading of the recent rebellion in Mexico that one of their former residents, Bob Valentine, was running hither and yon down there, trying to avoid the bullets of the many musketeers. Bob who now lives in California, travels for a canning company there and his route takes him to Mexico.

His sister, Miss Ella Valentine, Los Angeles, frantically tried to locate him knowing that he was in the direct path of the rebel army. She did not receive a single assuring message. Finally after many days of worry Bob arrived home with nary a bullet in his clothes. He tried to explain that he had sent her word when he had managed to get out. The telegrams arrived by mail several days after he reached home.

HOLD-UPS AND ROBBERIES IN ALLEGED LIST

Robert McClaren Confesses
Many "Jobs," Circleville
Police Say.

A career of crime, on which he started at the age of 11 years and which has included a hold-up, safe blowings, store robberies, and automobile thefts within the past three years, has been confessed by Robert McClaren, 19, of Walnut-st., according to local police.

McClaren, who is now the Pickaway-co jail in default of $1,000 bond to await the April grand jury, is said to have given a verbal confession of his crimes to Officers William McCrady and Fred Fitzpatrick, which he supplemented by a written confession given to Prosecutor Emmitt Crist.

His recital of law breakings solves many crimes committed in and near Circleville. Although evidence had often indicated him as a suspect, police say his arrest came about through women with whom he has associated. He was arrested by Officer McCrady and bound over to the grand jury by Mayor B. T. Hedges.

STARTED WHEN 11
McClaren, who has served four terms in the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster, first went there when he was 11 years old after he had robbed the Clarence Wolfe grocery. His other three terms were served for automobile thefts.

Last summer, while serving his fourth term, he escaped and enjoyed freedom for three weeks until arrested by Officer McCrady. In his confession to the local police Tuesday night, McClaren is said to have admitted five automobile thefts, four store robberies and two filling station lootings at that time.

The stores he robbed last summer, according to his reputed confession, included the Pershon store at Pherson and the Urton, E. E. Root and Joe Moats stores in Circleville. He is said to have admitted robbing the Watt Howson filling station at the junction of the Chillicothe and Kingston roads and the Charles Bass filling station in Circleville.

HIDDEN LOOT FOUND
Last summer loot, identified to have been taken in these robberies, were found hidden in a boat on the Scioto river, in the H. M. Crites' barn south of Circleville and in the Dave Dunlap shed south of Haysville. McClaren admitted he hid it in those places, police say.

SEA FREEDOM IS BIG ISSUE

Sharp Disagreement Is Seen
Ahead Between America and Great Britain.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—So serious are the international complications growing out of the coast guard's sinking of the Canadian auxiliary schooner I'm Alone by gunfire, that the whole question of the freedom of the seas threatens to be injected into the negotiations between the Canadian and British governments and the state department.

Moving cautiously to be sure of their facts, the Canadians and British are preparing to confront Secretary of State Stimson—he will have taken over his duties by that time—with notes sent the British government in 1914-15 on the very issues brought up by the fate of the I'm Alone.

The coast guard, according to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, acted under the tariff act of 1922 which extended the territorial jurisdiction of the United States to the twelve-mile limit. Under date of December 26, 1914, this government is on record as not recognizing "presumptions" set up by Great Britain in connection with seizure of vessels for the purpose of examination under municipal authority contrary to international law.

The British declare the American tariff act is in the nature of a municipal act in the international law sense, and that they are not ready to concede the three-mile limit rule of international law authorizing "not pursuit," is extended by American statute.

SPINAGO DELIVERS THE GOODS AS A SPRING TONIC

Body Rebuilt After a Winter of Ill Health Says Prominent Circleville Woman.

To the human system, Spring means vastly more than buds, flowers and sunshine. To the body, Spring means the time of year when reconstruction is necessary after the rigors of winter—when the winter's poisons must be driven out—when the blood must be rejuvenated, and when the organs must be properly attuned and put back in working order.

Residents of Circleville are especially lucky this year; for a new and efficient Spring tonic is now obtainable at The Mykrantz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St., Circleville, headquarters for this new master medicine. This super tonic is Spinago, a practical compound built upon a base of concentrated spinach which accounts for its surprising power to drive away suffering and disease. Who does not know the value of Spinago in practically every diet? Spinago contains in each bottle concentrated spinach in sufficient quantity to serve the purpose of great quantities of fresh, green spinach. Beside this most important ingredient, this master medicine is made up of a carefully picked selection of medically valuable roots, herbs and barks all blended together in such a manner to produce a well balanced product of great merit.

MRS. JOHN H. STEVENSON

Based upon such a formula it is not surprising that hundreds call daily at The Mykrantz Pharmacy to praise Spinago. It is easy to understand the following statement made by Mrs. John H. Stevenson, residing in Circleville at 426 E. Union street:

"My physical condition had been steadily getting worse during the fall and winter. Indigestion and stomach pains caused me to experience a dull, tired feeling most of the time. I was hardly able to get around a great part of the time. Not only did I have no appetite and no desire to eat, but whenever I did force myself to partake of food, I suffered terribly afterwards from terrible gas and indigestion pains. My weight dropped to 99 pounds and I lacked strength and energy constantly. I was very discouraged after trying every medicine and tonic that was recommended to me with no results. Then came the happy day when Mr. Gladell at the Mykrantz Pharmacy told me to bring back seven bottles of another advertised remedy which I had been taking with no results whatever and to start out all over again on this new Spinago tonic. I took those seven bottles back and received the money I had spent for them and after the first bottle of Spinago I noticed immediate improvement. I have now taken two bottles and am happy in the knowledge that my troubles are all over. No more stomach pains, no more indigestion; my constipation is all gone and I don't have to take pills any more. I can eat anything without fear of pains and my appetite is wonderful and am so pleased to know that I am gaining weight every day. My strength has all returned to me and I have plenty of energy all the time. I am so thankful to Spinago that I want everyone who is troubled with any of my complaints to try this truly wonderful tonic. I am sure they will be as thankful as I am."

Mrs. Stevenson is just one of the many who are discovering the wonderful value of Spinago as a spring tonic and as a medicine to drive away suffering caused by ailments of many years' standing, such as, indigestion, dyspepsia, stomach, liver, bowel and kidney complaints, constipation, rheumatism, neuritis, nervousness and generally worn out conditions.

Spinago is sold on an absolutely guaranteed basis at The Mykrantz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St., Circleville headquarters at $1.00 per bottle or 6 for $5.00 and if one, two or six bottles don't produce the desired result your money is cheerfully refunded. So why not try Spinago on this plan? You won't lose a cent.

As soon as he awakens in the morning, his mother says, Cyril puckers up his lips and starts to whistle, high and shrill. He continues to whistle throughout the day and upon occasion has awakened at night and started to whistle for want of something better to do, Mrs. Dickson relates.

Physicians and child experts who have examined him are of the opinion that Cyril, Jr., is perhaps the youngest whistler on record. They expressed amazement that a child so young could control the comparatively difficult muscular co-ordination necessary to produce a whistle.

Ambulance Planes Widen Their Scope

Miami, Fla.—The recent expansion of international flying has been accompanied by several international flights by physicians answering the call of duty and, in at least two instances, airplanes have been used as ambulances.

The first case occurred during the inauguration of air service for mail and passengers to San Juan, Porto Rico, when a newspaper correspondent was brought to Miami from Santiago, Cuba, after he had become ill in the Cuban city.

The second recorded case was when an air liner flew to Miami to return with Howard Scott, chief engineer of the yacht Arcadia. Scott was suffering from a steel splinter in his eye and was brought to Miami by plane for medical treatment.

Size of Hen's Eggs Fixed by Heredity

New York.—When a young pullet goes into the egg-producing business her first efforts are always small. According to Dr. Frank A. Hays of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, these first little eggs are worth checking up closely, because they will give an index of the size of the eggs to be expected when the main season comes on, and it is desired to have hens of the best capacity as mothers of the future flock.

If a hen can't turn out two-ounce eggs regularly, she should be marked for the block rather than for the breeding pen, for egg size is one of the things that "runs in families," and a hen's tendency to produce stinky eggs will be passed on to her daughters, and even through her sons to her granddaughters.

Takes a Rail Trip, Pays 31 Years Later

Ontario, Calif.—A railroad passenger fare from Iowa to California, 31 years overdue, has been paid at last.

An aged man stepped into a ticket office here recently, and in a trembling voice announced that he wished to make amends for a wrong he perpetrated against the company early in 1898.

His was the story of a father with a large family, who heeded the call of the West. But when final arrangements had been made he lacked fare for one member of his flock. So he devised a special packing box which was sent with the fare to the coast, in which his son made the trip.

"The ride must have turned the boy's ambition toward a railroad career," the man beamed as he paid the fare, "because today he is a conductor."

Boston.—The "blot" which was placed on the name of Roger Williams 293 years ago, when the Massachusetts General court ordered him banished for conduct unbecoming a colonist, may be erased shortly by that same legislative body.

Convinced after extensive research that Williams was unjustly treated when he was banished from this state for disputing the right of the king of England to convey land titles of colonists, Lewis S. Gray of Swansea has announced he will seek revocation of the banishment order.

Williams after leaving Massachusetts in 1636, went to Rhode Island and founded Providence, the first white settlement in that territory.

Is Thriving on Diet Worth 3 Cents Daily

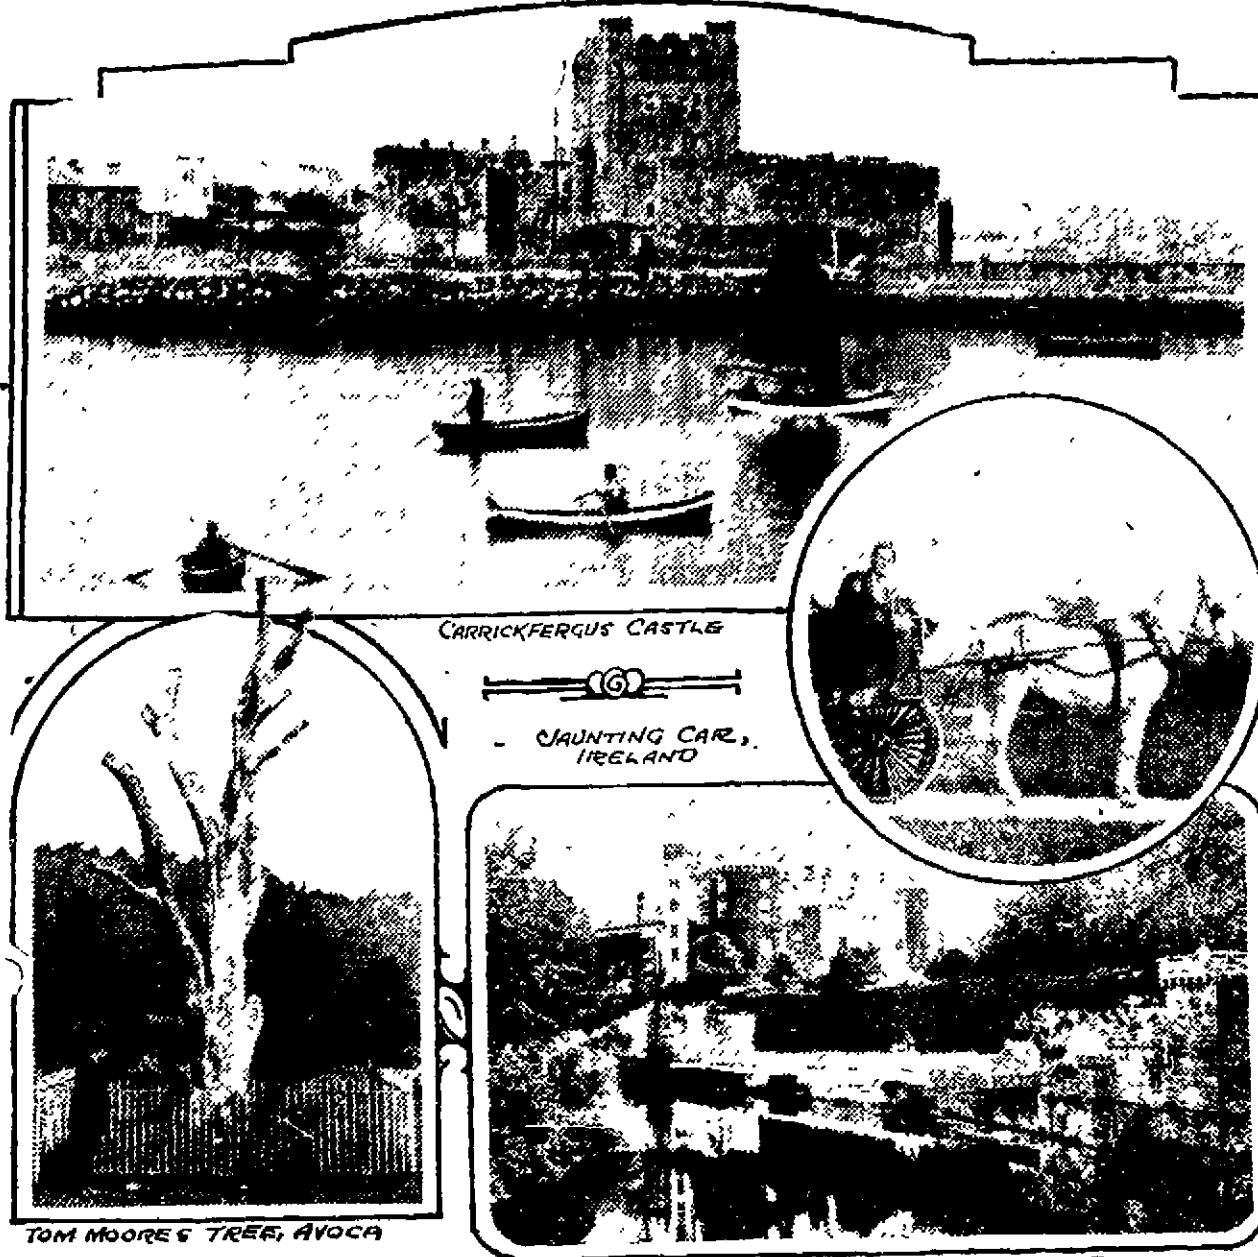

Arkansas City, Kan.—Three cents a day is what it costs to board Dr. G. L. Winans, pastor of the Free Methodist church here. When a young man Doctor Winans, who is now fifty-four years old, was kicked in the stomach by a horse. In order to save his life it was necessary to operate on him to remove two-thirds of the digestive organs.

Ever since that time he has lived entirely on two glasses of whey a day. The whey is skimmed from sour milk and the curd removed. He does not even drink cold water. The diet has not proved a handicap to Doctor Winans, as he has prospered and reared a fine family.

Sons of Erin Will Soon Be Journeying to Emerald Isle

CARRICKFERGUS CASTLE
SAILING CAR, IRELAND

TOM MOORE'S TREE, AVOCA

KILKENNY CASTLE

Ireland is a spell-binder among nations. Though her children may have wandered afar, the enchantment she cast over them at birth ever endures. It is almost impossible to find an Irishman in whom the strains of "Come Back to Erin" does not create a longing to return to his native sod, if only for the briefest visit. Other visitors to Ireland, too, find her lure equally irresistible.

Ireland is but a six days' voyage from Canada via the majestic St. Lawrence. The other sea-way to Europe, the Canadian Pacific Steamships provide frequent service to Ireland from the fine old French-Canadian city of Montreal, a city rich in legend and glamorous history. Two days are spent in sailing down the beautiful St. Lawrence, and the transition from river to open sea is hardly perceptible to the voyager, who lands at Cobh (Queenstown) and Belfast.

The Emerald Isle, though small, offers a variety of climates ranging from the semi-tropical weather at Glengarriff, Parknasilla and Kenmare to the bracing air of Sligo and Donegal. The witchery of Killarney, the rugged splendor of Usher Hills and the cliff country of the Comeragh more provide scenery comparable to that of practically any country in the world.

Devotees of golf and tennis will find in Ireland a paradise in which to pursue their favorite pastimes, for her golf courses and tennis courts are noted the world over for their excellence. Race meets, too, are held during the summer, while riding to hounds astride a spirited Irish hunter provides thrills a-plenty in the autumn. Sailing and boating on sheltered bays, bathing from smooth beaches, angling in well-stocked rivers and lakes complete the visitors' enjoyment of the Emerald Isle.

No visitor to Ireland should fail to kiss the Blarney stone, which is embedded in the walls of Blarney Castle, near Cork. It has been kissed by millions but still retains its magic power. It is reputed to give one "the gift of the gab." A poet has written: "There is a stone that whoever kisses, Oh! he never misses to grow eloquent."

CAREER OF CRIME

school, McClaren was released in February of this year and did not pull his first job until March 8, when police say he stole the Hudson brougham of Robert Young, former sheriff, from its parking place on N. Court-st. McClaren's confession said he took Myrtle Jackson, Circleville, to a dance in the stolen car and in the return trip brought Mrs. Lucy Tatman to her home.

Mrs. Tatman is now in the county jail facing a delinquency charge preferred by her husband, Frank Tatman. She was arrested late Saturday night by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell who saw a man run from the house as he approached, leaving an auto in front of the house. The car was later identified as having been stolen a short time before from Luther Leist, of Williamsport. McClaren is said to have admitted being the man who ran from Deputy Fissell and to having stolen the car.

HOLD-UP INCLUDED
After taking Mrs. Tatman home the night of March 8, McClaren is said to have gone to the Howson filling station near Chillicothe and robbing it of gum, candy, cakes and money.

On March 15, according to reported confession, McClaren stole the Chrysler roadster of W. F. VanGundy, S. Pickaway-st., and drove 10 miles east of Columbus, held up a filling station, tied the attendant to a chair, and escaped with the contents of the cash register; drove down to the Howson filling station for another robbery; returned to Circleville and robbed the Urton store, and then abandoned the auto with some candy and cakes in the rear of the Colonial Carriage Co. building.

According to police, McClaren admitted robbing the Barnhill dry cleaning establishment on March 16 and taking $46 but he would not repeat this confession to Prosecutor Crist. Other robberies alleged to have been admitted by him include two safe blowing jobs at the Circleville Lumber Co. getting $50 and two robberies of the Rothman clothing store about the same time when he took away a number of garments in an automobile.

Various Legends Tell of the Origin of Music

Music, most authorities agree, had a vocal origin. Some believe man attempted to imitate the sounds of birds, others say his melody developed from hunting calls or other vocal signals employed in primitive life. A Chinese legend goes so far as to declare that a ultrasonic bird provided the musical scale, while the Japanese say music was devised by the gods to lure the sun goddess from a cave where she had retired. An Arabian legend has it that Mohammed, a camel driver, fell from his seat and hurt his arm. In pain he called out "O, Allah." His fine voice stirred up the camels so that they moved more quickly. So (who could not guess the result!) from that time all camel-drivers sang.

It is interesting to note that the Greek word from which "music" is derived was used by that people to embrace all the arts over which the Nine Muses were held to preside. Hence, "Music" in those days included all those branches of education concerned with the development of the mind as opposed to the body. What moderns specifically call music, they referred to as "harmony."

Appeal to Men Through Vanity and Vainglory

Almost every woman has something about her which, carefully nurtured, will make her seem desirable—not, of course, to every man in her world, but to one or two. The charm, which may be anything from piquant conversation to good cooking, will find appreciation somewhere if it be well displayed.

Men are appealed to through their vanity and vainglory, which more easily than women's, which means that most men would rather be seen about with a woman who patently did credit to their own powers of fascination than with the worst creature in the world if she had no means of making the beholders envy them.

"There may be men who dislike 'mere flirtation,' and coldly ignore a woman who attracts, but you will have to look for them in monasteries and other retired places. They are not of this world. A man likes to look upon a woman as one who is subject to a hundred weaknesses and follies, and yet remains at heart a staunch friend, a really good sort. A mad falls in love with a woman who helps him to appear at his best."—"The Technique of the Love Affair," by a Gentleman

ONE IS DEAD AFTER FIGHT

Two Others Dying From Injuries Received in Riot At Chicago Coliseum.

CHICAGO, March 27.—With one victim dead, two others dying and 13 still in a serious condition, three major investigations into the disastrous riot and panic during the Fields-Thompson boxing show at the coliseum Monday night, got into full swing today.

The trio of investigations are being conducted by the Illinois boxing commission, the city council and James Mullen, promoter of the ill-fated bout.

The first to die of his injuries was Herman Landfield, 38, who sustained a skull fracture and internal injuries when he was knocked to the concrete floor of the coliseum and tramped in the stampede for exits.

Alonso Stroud, 24, a negro, and John Mahoney, 34, are reported near death in St. Luke's hospital. Both suffered compound fractures of each leg and internal injuries.

Many of the other victims will be incapacitated for weeks as the result of similar injuries.

Promoter Mullen has offered a reward of $500 for information leading to the identity of the men who started the fatal brawl in the balcony. None of the principals was arrested.

Pardonable Pride
"You have swayed the opinions of the multitude!" said the admiring friend.

"I did better than that," answered Senator Sorghum. "I managed to express myself in a way that secured unlimited financial backing."

Sons of Erin Will Soon Be Journeying to Emerald Isle

CARRICKFERGUS CASTLE SAILING CAR, IRELAND TOM MOORE'S TREE, AVOCA KILKENNY CASTLE

Ireland is a spell-binder among nations. Though her children may have wandered afar, the enchantment she cast over them at birth ever endures. It is almost impossible to find an Irishman in whom the strains of "Come Back to Erin" does not create a longing to return to his native sod, if only for the briefest visit. Other visitors to Ireland, too, find her lure equally irresistible.

Ireland is but a six days' voyage from Canada via the majestic St. Lawrence — the other sea-way to Europe. The Canadian Pacific Steamships provide frequent service to Ireland from the fine old French-Canadian city of Montreal, a city rich in legend and glamorous history. Two days are spent in sailing down the beautiful St. Lawrence, and the transition from river to open sea is hardly perceptible to the voyager, who lands at Cobh (Queenstown) and Belfast.

The Emerald Isle, though small, offers a variety of climates ranging from the semi-tropical weather at Glengariff, Parknasilla and Kenmare to the bracing air of Sligo and Donegal. The witchery of Killarney, the rugged splendor of Ulster Hills and the cliff country of the Connaught shore provide scenery comparable to that of practically any country in the world.

Devotees of golf and tennis will find in Ireland a paradise in which to pursue their favorite pastimes, for her golf courses and tennis courts are noted the world over for their excellence. Race meets, too, are held during the summer, while riding to hounds astride a spirited Irish hunter provides thrills a-plenty in the autumn. Sailing and boating on sheltered bays, bathing from smooth beaches, angling in well-stocked rivers and lakes complete the visitors' enjoyment of the Emerald Isle.

No visitor to Ireland should fail to kiss the Blarney stone, which is embedded in the walls of Blarney Castle, near Cork. It has been kissed by millions but still retains its magic power. It is reputed to give one "the gift of the gab." A poet has written: "There is a stone that whoever kisses, Oh! he never misses to grow eloquent."

ONE IS DEAD AFTER FIGHT

Two Others Dying From Injuries Received In Riot At Chicago Coliseum.

CHICAGO, March 27.—With one victim dead, two others dying and 13 still in a serious condition, three major investigations into the disastrous riot and panic during the Fields-Thompson boxing show at the coliseum Monday night, got into full swing today.

The trio of investigations are being conducted by the Illinois boxing commission, the city council and James Mullen, promoter of the ill-fated bout.

The first to die of his injuries was Herman Landfield, 38, who sustained a skull fracture and internal injuries when he was knocked to the concrete floor of the coliseum and trampled in the stampede for exits.

Alonzo Stroud, 24, a negro, and John Mahoney, 34, are reported near death in St. Luke's hospital. Both suffered compound fractures of each leg and internal injuries.

Many of the other victims will be incapacitated for weeks as the result of similar injuries.

Promoter Mullen has offered a reward of $500 for information leading to the identity of the men who started the fatal brawn in the balcony. None of the principals was arrested.

Pardonable Pride

"You have swayed the opinions of the multitude!" said the admiring friend.

"I did better than that," answered Senator Sorghum. "I managed to express myself in a way that secured unlimited financial backing."

A feature of this department, through special arrangement between The Herald and the Department of Agriculture, is that readers may feel free to address inquiries and communications touching on matters connected with any governmental activities in the Capitol to The Herald, One Department of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

TO KEEP STATE FAIR CLEAN

Some legislative gestures have been in evidence, aimed at letting down the statute bars against games of chance and certain types of shows and concessions at the State Fair. These efforts are doomed to failure, according to Director Perry L. Green, who is firm in his stand that the State Fair must be kept clean above all else—a stand that has full approval of Governor Myers Y. Cooper.

The State Fair is to be held Aug. 26 to 31, this year. Arrangements are going forward. The latest item of interest in this direction was the closing of a contract a few days ago for the services of the famed Armo Band, of Middletown, Ohio, at this year's fair. This is the musical aggregation that has proven so popular as recording and radio performers. The Armo Band classes right up with Sousa's Band, which played the State Fair last year.

4-H Club and other youthful activities are to be given wider scope than ever at this year's fair, it is announced.

LIVESTOCK RATES CUT

A reduction of 12 per cent in rates for shipping livestock from point to point in Ohio has been ordered by the Public Utilities Commission, on complaint of the Ohio Farm Bureau Association and nine other organizations. The order becomes effective March 25 and is directed against 34 railroads operating in Ohio, according to information received by Dr. C. McCandless, head of the Division of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

The Ohio Department of Agriculture, Perry L. Green, Director, has received reports of the federal Department of Agriculture and Department of Labor, issued on the same day, showing the rise in the cost of living and the success of collective selling of farm products, "in which is seen the close

"KONJOLA—THAT'S MY ADVICE TO ALL WHO SUFFER"

Happy Lady Tells How New Medicine Put a Quick End To Liver Trouble And Rheumatism.

MRS. R. DUNBAR

"I marvel at the powers of this new Konjola," said Mrs. R. Dunbar, Route No. 2, Canton, Ohio. "I find it difficult to believe that two years of suffering from rheumatism has been so quickly and completely ended. For two years I had rheumatic pains all over me, and at times was scarcely able to walk across a room. Then, too, my liver was sluggish and I had frequent dizzy spells. My system was full of impurities, and weakened my general condition. A friend suggested that I try Konjola and put it to the test. How this wonderful medicine went to the very source of my troubles was simply astounding. My improvement was immediate, and day by day I became better and stronger. Today the rheumatic pains and dizzy spells have vanished, and I can walk around the house all day. Konjola did more than I was told it would do, and I am eager to have this statement made public, as I consider it a duty to tell all the victims of rheumatism of my experience."

Konjola is sold in Circleville, Ohio, at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

relation of city and country interests." In the last 15 years the cost of living has increased 71.3 per cent, eight tenths of one per cent having been added in the last year. During 1928 the 2,000,000 farmers belonging to 12,000 co-operative associations sold collectively farm products valued at nearly $2,000,000.

"The organized farmers received better prices generally for their products than when there was lack of system in selling and they were competing against each other," declares the Youngstown Vindicator editorially, in commenting on the reports.

CORN BORER LINE

The corn borer quarantine line across Ohio has been moved 20 to 30 miles south of the 1928 line. E. C. Cotton, chief of the Division of Plant Industry, describes the new line, roughly, as follows:

"Beginning at the southeast corner of Belmont county, and extending westward along the southern boundaries of Belmont, Guernsey and Muskingum counties thence south to the southeastern corner of Bearfield township in Perry county; thence west through Perry county, and continuing west on the southern side of Fairfield and Pickaway counties and taking in all of Fayette county except the townships of Perry, Green and Concord. Thence north to the southeast corner of Ross township, Greene county, thence westward to the southwest corner of Van Buren township, Montgomery county; thence in a general northwesterly direction to include all of Miami county and all but six southwestern townships of Darke county."

FISH AND GAME NOTES

J. W. Thompson, the new head of the Fish and Game Division of the Department of Agriculture, whose predecessor bears the same family name, has announced that game preserves in Ohio are to be stocked with wild turkeys as well as with additional Hungarian pheasants. About 14,000 pheasants are to be available for distribution in Ohio this year.

An item of interest to Ohio fishermen is the announcement that the first car is to be set at the lake this week to be loaded with fish for stocking down state streams.

Ailing Heart Requires Quiet, Rest to Get Well

Take care of your heart. You have only one. You give it a huge amount of work to do and it does it without telling you how you are mistreating it. But when it does rebel and tells you, pay attention to the warnings.

This is the advice of Dr. Louis M. Warfield, writing in Uysela, the health magazine published by the American Medical Association.

Doctor Warfield describes the evidence of a worn-out heart. You are short of breath on exertion that had not previously produced distress. You may notice that your shoes are tight in the evenings, but that you have no difficulty in putting them on the next morning. Then one day you take cold; the next day you are short of breath you have a distressing cough and your feet are swollen.

As soon as the symptoms are relieved the average person wants to get up, rather than go about slowly and gradually getting back to his usual activity. It would not be unqualified bad fortune for a person with a bad heart to have a broken leg, too, Doctor Warfield declares.

Even in hard water, dirty dishes are easy to wash

BUT before washing them, you must soften the water with Melo. Soap and soft water never make suds. In soft water no dirty ring forms around the dishpan. Dishes sparkle in soft water and grease is cut.

Water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. Melo makes soap more effective, saving from 1/2 to 3/4 the amount ordinarily used. Use Melo wherever you want soft water. Get it at your grocer's.

INSTEAD of exercise

Here's good news for the busy men and women who haven't time to take regular exercise. Millions have already learned how to keep fit with the little exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime.

Cascarets make bilious, headachy, constipated people feel fine. Their effect is not only quick, but it's lasting. They give the bowels as much real exercise as you get from an hour's bowling.

Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives don't act like Cascarets. These things produce only mechanical or chemical action. They actually weaken your bowels.

Each time you use Cascarets, your bowels become stronger. Ask your doctor. He knows they are made from Cascara, Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and strengthens the bowel muscles. That's why Cascarets are selling at the rate of 20 million packages a year!

A Country Editor

IN AND ABOUT THE STATE HOUSE

A Department of News Service And Cooperation for Herald Readers

To Herald Readers: The writer is a Country Editor whose duties at the State House afford him opportunity to write of happenings and conditions in and about the Capitol which should prove of especial interest to The Circleville Herald readers.

A feature of this department, through special arrangement between The Herald and the Department of Agriculture, is that readers may feel free to address inquiries and communications touching on matters connected with any governmental activities in the Capital to The Herald, Care Department of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

TO KEEP STATE FAIR CLEAN

Some legislative gestures have been in evidence, aimed at letting down the statute bars against games of chance and certain types of shows and concessions at the State Fair. These efforts are doomed to failure, according to Director Perry L. Green, who is firm in his stand that the State Fair must be kept clean above all else—a stand that has full approval of Governor Myers Y. Cooper.

The State Fair is to be held Aug. 26 to 31, this year. Arrangements are going forward. The latest item of interest in this direction was the closing of a contract a few days ago for the services of the famed Armo Band, of Middletown, Ohio, at this year's fair. This is the musical aggregation that has proven so popular as recording and radio performers. The Armo Band classes right up with Sousa's Band, which played the State Fair last year.

4-H Club and other youthful activities are to be given wider scope than ever at this year's fair, it is announced.

LIVESTOCK RATES CUT

A reduction of 12 per cent in rates for shipping livestock from point to point in Ohio has been ordered by the Public Utilities Commission, on complaint of the Ohio Farm Bureau Association and nine other organizations. The order becomes effective March 25 and is directed against 34 railroads operating in Ohio, according to information received by Dr. C. McCandless, head of the Division of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

The Ohio Department of Agriculture, Perry L. Green, Director, has received reports of the federal Department of Agriculture and Department of Labor, issued on the same day, showing the rise in the cost of living and the success of collective selling of farm products, "in which is seen the close relation of city and country interests." In the last 15 years the cost of living has increased 71.3 per cent, eight tenths of one per cent having been added in the last year. During 1928 the 2,000,000 farmers belonging to 12,000 co-operative associations sold collectively farm products valued at nearly $2,000,000.

"The organized farmers received better prices generally for their products than when there was lack of system in selling and they were competing against each other," declares the Youngstown Vindicator editorially, in commenting on the reports.

CORN BORER LINE

The corn borer quarantine line across Ohio has been moved 20 to 30 miles south of the 1928 line. E. C. Cotton, chief of the Division of Plant Industry, describes the new line, roughly, as follows:

"Beginning at the southeast corner of Belmont county, and extending westward along the southern boundaries of Belmont, Guernsey and Muskingum counties, thence south to the southeastern corner of Bearfield township in Perry county; thence west through Perry county, and continuing west on the southern side of Fairfield and Pickaway counties and taking in all of Fayette county except the townships of Perry, Green and Concord. Thence north to the southeast corner of Ross township, Greene county, thence westward to the southwest corner of Van Buren township, Montgomery county; thence in a general northwesterly direction to include all of Miami county and all but six southwestern townships of Darke county."

FISH AND GAME NOTES

J. W. Thompson, the new head of the Fish and Game Division of the Department of Agriculture, whose predecessor bears the same family name, has announced that game preserves in Ohio are to be stocked with wild turkeys as well as with additional Hungarian pheasants. About 14,000 pheasants are to be available for distribution in Ohio this year.

An item of interest to Ohio fishermen is the announcement that the first car is to be set at the lake this week to be loaded with fish for stocking down state streams.

SON WILL PREACH

Rev. and Mrs. Paul Ferguson and their two children of Zanesville, are visiting his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. O. L. Ferguson, of E. Ohio-st. Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock Rev. Paul Ferguson will fill the pulpit of his father's church, the Church of Christ in Christian Union.

Ailing Heart Requires Quiet, Rest to Get Well

Take care of your heart. You have only one. You give it a huge amount of work to do and it does it without telling you how you are mistreating it. But when it does rebel and tells you, pay attention to the warnings.

This is the advice of Dr. Louis M. Warfield, writing in Hygeia, the health magazine published by the American Medical association.

Doctor Warfield describes the evidence of a worn-out heart. You are short of breath on exertion that had not previously produced distress. You may notice that your shoes are tight in the evenings but that you have no difficulty in putting them on the next morning. Then one day you take cold; the next day you are short of breath you have a distressing cough and your feet are swollen.

As soon as the symptoms are relieved the average person wants to get up, rather than go about slowly and gradually getting back to his usual activity. It would not be unmitigated bad fortune for a person with a bad heart to have a broken leg, too, Doctor Warfield declares.

Even in hard water, dirty dishes are easy to wash

But before washing them, you must soften the water with Melo. Soap and soft water never make scum. In soft water no dirty ring forms around the dishes. Dishes sparkle in soft water and grease is cut.

Water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. Melo makes soap more effective, saving from 1/2 to 3/4 the amount ordinarily used. Use Melo wherever you want soft water. Get it at your grocer's.

Holy Week Topic "MY MASTER AND BROTHER"

Memory Verse for Wednesday "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now" (John 16:12). (Read: John 16:12 to 24.)

MEDITATION: This day in our Lord's last week is a day of silence so far as the records inform us. The surmise that He spent the day in seclusion with the disciples or in the home in Bethany is plausible. It would be in keeping with His serene, untroubled spirit. He had yet many things to say but it was not necessary to say everything. He was going away but the Comforter was coming. The future would still have access to divine guidance. So I must still look for the unsaid things which past ages could not bear or understand. There is more truth to break forth. Nor will it all come to me or my time. I also may be untroubled and unafraid. Divine guidance will not fail in the future as it has not failed in the past.

PRAYER: Almighty God who in Thy providence has made all ages a preparation for the kingdom of Thy Son; we beseech Thee to make ready our hearts for the brightness of Thy glory and the fullness of Thy blessing in Christ Jesus our Lord. Amen.

—From Hunter's "Devotional Service."

Big Bertha

"Big Bertha" had a firing distance of 75 miles. The principle on which this long-distance gun was operated is that if a shell is fired upward at an angle of 55 degrees to the horizontal, and at a high velocity, so that the shell will rise above the dense atmosphere close to the earth's surface and rapidly reach the thin air which exists at a height of ten miles above the earth then its flight will be practically unimpeded and it will travel a great distance before it falls again. During its flight from the "Big Bertha" the German shell rose to a height of 24 miles, and traveled more than fifty miles of its course in a very thin atmosphere.

INSTEAD of exercise

Here's good news for the busy men and women who haven't time to take regular exercise. Millions have already learned how to keep fit with the little exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime.

Cascarets make bilious, headachy, constipated people feel fine. Their effect is not only quick, but it's lasting. They give the bowels as much real exercise as you get from an hour's bowling.

Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives don't act like Cascarets. These things produce only mechanical or chemical action. They actually weaken your bowels.

Each time you use Cascarets, your bowels become stronger. Ask your doctor. He knows they are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and strengthens the bowel muscles. That's why Cascarets are selling at the rate of 20 million packages a year!

WHITE HOUSE FISHING

President Hoover is said to frown on the "Summer White House" which Congress voted to establish in the Virginia hills. He may not use the $48,000 provided to make Mount Weather fit for company.

The reason is unperpetrated, but quite human. There is plenty of weather on that Blue Ridge hill-top, but no fishing. And what Mr. Hoover is interested in when he recreates is fishing.

No doubt a fishpond could be provided there, and stocked with his favorite fish. But maybe just sitting in an armchair and jerking trout tangle out of a pond wouldn't be the same thing as whipping a stream for them.

There is still the possibility of finding speckled trout in some of the streams within driving range of Mount Weather. If that hope fails, it may be necessary to move the national capital to Florida or California. As the President has observed more than once, "It's too long between bites."

Some Warlike Females

Who Fought Own Battles

Many married men suspect the truth of the legends of the Amazons, a race of warlike women who as far as India and Africa, and founded colonies in Asia Minor. Fairly authentic history records that in 1540 an explorer, Francisco de Orellana, making his way from Peru to the Atlantic through the Brazils, was told of a tribe of warrior women who lived apart from the men. He proceeded on his journey and approached the neighborhood of the junction of the Madena and Marañon rivers, and suddenly found himself opposed by a group of warlike women who were pathed on the banks and were leading the men in what might have been a battle, but the explorer given them an excuse for it.

Being convinced that he had fallen on the renowned Amazons, Orellana crossed examined some of the natives, who confirmed his belief. The women appeared to be very tall, robust, fair of complexion, with long hair twisted over their heads and skins of wild beasts around their loins. They carried bows and arrows with which they succeeded in killing many of the explorer's party.

It is said to have been for these fair but ferocious enemies that Orellana named the river Amazon.

Moles Long Cherished

as Marks of Beauty

For centuries it would seem moles have been considered a real mark of beauty. The truth of the matter is, of course, that some people with moles are ravishingly lovely to look at, and some are ugly as they can be.

Wyatt, a poet and artist of the court of Henry VIII, says of Anne Boleyn, "Likewise there were said to be upon certain parts of her body small moles, incident to the clearest complexions."

Certain it is that Anne Boleyn had a lovely complexion and the courtiers of the time referred to her as "fresh and young."

Santa Teresa's three moles have come down in history and so far from being looked upon as a blemish on her beautiful face, they were considered a contribution to her beauty. The biographer leaves nothing to our imagination and tells us that "she had three moles on her left cheek which became her mark—some below the bridge of the nose, another between her nose and mouth, and a third below her mouth."

CLEAR UP FOUR-YEAR-OLD CRIME

Roving Farm Worker Confesses to the Murder of Sweetheart.

New York—Any writer of detective stories who could not produce a fast selling thriller out of the real facts which surrounded the murder of Sarah Elizabeth Johnson, back in 1924, down in Middlesex county, N. J., the home of the world's best murder mysteries, is not worthy of the name.

There was love interest, an ardent, fiery, bitterly passionate love interest. There were parental objections to this interest. There was a virginal and discreditable argument between the objecting parent and the ardent swain which just preceded the murder, and there was the indignant parent who scoffed at love and drove the lover from his farm.

Then there was a cave, eerie and mysterious, way out behind the apple orchard, with a heavy stone door, and with a cavernous interior which could hide almost anything. That was the love nest, the trying place where the lovers met and talked over the hard luck which faced them.

Killed at the Trusting Place. It was at the mouth of that cave that Sarah Elizabeth Johnson was murdered. The story was, then, that she had told the swain she loved him, that a life meant nothing to her without him and all that sort of thing. But she also told him that she dared not defy her father, and that she couldn't marry him until he had settled down, thrown aside his nomadic disposition and shown that he really, in the end, might amount to something. So he shot her, pushing the muzzle down her opened mouth.

There was never any real doubt as to who did the actual murder, but that, of course, for purposes of fiction could have been clouded just a little. The point is that Middlesex county now has its hands on the man who, according to advices from the west coast, has confessed to facts which the county detectives believe were the true ones.

A Roving Farm Hand.

Harvey Lee Selhaver, when Kingston, N. J., knew him, was a big, two-fisted worker of the soil. But he was a nomad at heart. He blew into Princeton in April of 1924 on the brake beams of a freight. Somehow he had not dropped off when the freight train was put on the branch at Princeton Junction and he found himself in a college town, where work was scarce. For one week he worked as gardener in the town and then started plodding through the countryside.

Early in May he banged on the rear door of a rambling old farmhouse about four miles outside Kingston, which happened to be just in Middlesex county. His rap was answered by a smiling girl of sixteen who told him she would call her father.

Girl Is Popular. This girl was Sarah Elizabeth Johnson. She was a blonde, trim and neat, with blue eyes that were constantly smiling. According to those who knew her in the village of Kingston, "Sally" was vivacious, charming, and full of fun. Evidently Harvey Lee Selhaver thought so, too. In any event he took a job on Joseph A. Johnson's farm.

It was as pretty a melodramatic movie setting as one could wish. The only trouble was that Harvey didn't know what restraint meant, and he had spent 32 years of life battling around, fighting farmers, but in the end getting about what he wanted, principally because of his strength.

It was late in July when Johnson first opened the thing. He sent Sally into the house one night and told Selhaver that he'd be fired, and fired quick, if he didn't let the girl alone. Later, when Johnson found that he had sent the girl a note, he did fire him.

Cave Was Post Office. Now the cave enters. It really wasn't a cave but the cellar of a house that some one never got around to finish. Beams covered it, and a big stone made a perfect door. Tangled and matted bushes helped to conceal it. The girl made a practice of going out into the apple orchard, after school, and naturally roamed to the cave.

Selhaver remained in the vicinity. He left notes in the cave for "Sally," and she left answers. They met there.

The girl, however, had told her father she wouldn't think of marrying Harvey. Perhaps she stuck to that resolution when she met him there. Selhaver now says that she turned him down on August 24 and he became angry. He had a revolver.

In the cave, the day the murder was discovered, were clearly defined marks which showed there had been a bitter struggle. Evidently she opened her mouth at one time, for the revolver which killed her was probably pushed into her mouth when it was fired. She dropped dead, and Selhaver, perhaps in remorse, pulled her body out of the cave into the path which leads past it to the store at Kingston. There it was discovered within two hours.

Of course suspicion pointed to Selhaver. He became a much wanted farmhand. But he disappeared and not a word was heard from him until he walked into a Seattle police station recently and confessed to killing the girl.

ANOTHER RESULT OF CIVILIZATION

THEATRES

"THROUGH THE BREAKERS"

A good illustration of the extent to which Hollywood goes in the capturing of actual realism, is evidenced in a film which came to the Cliftona theatre Wednesday, entitled "Through the Breakers," a Gotham production.

The story had its origin in the successful stage play by Owen Davis. Most of the action takes place on a semi-tropical island of the Pacific, and in order to establish an unquestioned setting of authenticity the Gotham Production unit made a veritable expedition to Samoa which entailed a 22-day trip across the lazy waters of the Pacific.

The explosion of a yacht, peopled by gay, jazzy passenger groups, is one of the best action scenes which dramatically enhances the interest of the story.

Margaret Livingston and Holmes Herbert portray the feature roles, Natalie Joyce, former follies girl, is said to contribute an extraordinary character portrayal, the part of a beautiful native girl in love with the white overseer of the island. Clyde Cook whose comic nuances have elevated the entertaining quality of countless films is also in the cast.

Children Missed Out

"Times have changed," remarked the thoughtful guy. "Yes," replied the wise one. "In former times a child never had a chance to attend two or three weddings at which its mother was the wife."

Morning Glory Blossom

Saved for Count's Eye

A legend tells of the introduction of the morning glory into Japan, says the New York Times. A Japanese prince heard of a vine that blossomed only in the early morning and notified the foreign nobleman who owned it he was coming to see it. When he arrived the vines no longer were trailing over the walls. The entire garden had been uprooted and there was no sign of the flower.

Being angered, he started to leave. Having been invited to tea however, his sense of politeness compelled him to turn back. On entering the tearoom he saw a single morning glory blossom in a vase in a corner alcove. Inquiring of the nobleman why the garden had been ruined the prince received the reply, "I ruined the garden in order that you might really see the blossom. If it were in plenty, you could not really have observed it so well as you did this single last flower saved for your eyes alone."

Fever Carried by Goats

Malaria fever, or more technically undulant fever, epidemic along the Mediterranean coasts, particularly on the island of Malta, is carried by goats. It is common in the United States, principally in Texas where goats are raised. Recently Dr. Edward Francis contracted the disease. He also was a victim of "rabid fever" (tuberculosis), named after Tulare county, Calif., where in 1910, it was first identified. Doctor Francis isolated the germ of the latter, and the ailment is known among the medical profession as Francis disease.

An unauthenticated report says that Alvin T. Fuller, former Governor of Massachusetts, has been tentatively selected by President Hoover to succeed Herrick as Ambassador to France.

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Holden is a model wife for handsome Quinn Holden, Texas minister. Ever in love with him herself, Irene hopes to win his heart from the "gold and white ghost" of the beautiful dead Lilith, his first wife. Only the second Lilith, born at her mother's death, has full control of his affections. Tina, Lundy, Ross and Patricia, Irene's children by Holden, are always secondary. Tina, conscious of her foster sister's beauty and power, bears silently the humiliation of wearing her old clothes and using her old books in college. Lilith becomes engaged to Roger Devereux, son of wealthy Texas parents, but postpones her marriage to spend a year in New York with some money left her father. There she meets Vivien Winthrop, wealthy society girl, who introduces her to Bill Chester, scion of millions. Bill's fiancée, Sally Burton, is in Paris. When Irene wishes to spend the Summer alone in New York Irene objects, but her father, as usual, lets her have her way. Bill, madly in love with the blonde beauty of Lilith, asks her to break her engagement to Roger. He writes Sally breaking his own. Then a cable from his grandfather commands him to meet the old man abroad and interrupts the ecstatic courtship with Lilith. Overcome by the power of love and the thought of separation, Lilith gives herself up to Bill. For two days they are together before he sails. Roger, receiving Lilith's letter, hastens to New York. In Paris, Bill is told by his grandfather that if he marries Lilith he will be left penniless.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

BILL stood in swirling silence for a moment, unable to speak. A little white and gold clock on the mantel ticked with incongruous lightness, and the dim roar of the city beat like far-off thunder on his ears. The old man went, "I'm tired of this orgy of words. You will make up your mind, one way or the other, before you leave this room. You will promise to marry Sally Burton, by special license, right away, or I am done with you."

"Grandfather!" came his awe-stricken voice. This was a stranger he faced, this granite old man who had withstood his pleas, his arguments, through the days since he landed. Not the grumbling despot who had scolded but had always yielded in the end, unable to resist his gaiety, his appeals.

The old man went on inexorably. "You haven't a dollar to your name. You have extravagant tastes. Who'll pay your passage back to your princess? Who'll furnish the palace for you to keep her in?"

The boy turned to his mother, all his eager heart in his eyes. "Mother!" he cried, lifting his hands unconsciously in appeal.

But it was a parakeet, not a mother, that shrilled at him: "Don't expect me to back you—if you defy your grandfather! If you throw away your chances for a big success, don't think I'll give you a penny!"

He stiffened, as at a shock. Then he lifted his head proudly. "I won't ask either of you for a penny! I'll make my own living. I'll choose my own life."

The old man saved him to silence. "Don't be precipitate. Weigh the facts. Isn't it possible that the princess has an eye to your money?"

"No! she loves me!" Pride, exultation were in his voice.

"Will she care so much about a counter jumper, or a bill collector, at twenty dollars a week, say? And a girl who has as much charm as you say she has can easily get herself another sweetheart. Can you get another sweetheart?"

"But we love each other!" The words were wrenched from his heart.

"She knew you were engaged to Sally, didn't she?"

"Yes. What of it? She was engaged to too."

"Yet she led you on, when you were bound to Sally? What sort of honor is that?"

"She loved me . . . as I loved her!"

The grandfather's voice was gentler now, more persuasive. "It's a fortune, son. I've seen the world longer than you have. You can be sure Sally won't be marrying you for money or position. She has as much as we have." There was pleading in the dull eyes.

"But I don't love Sally," he argued, impatiently.

"Think of your future," said the old man grimly. "If you marry Sally Burton, your son will one day be one of the richest men in the country. And one of the most powerful, if he has any brains."

"What does that matter to me?" cried Bill, in desperation. "I'd rather die than give up Lilith!"

He had a vision of Lilith as she had waved him goodbye, tears in her eyes, but a gallant smile on her lips.

The old man went on, "You will promise to marry Sally Burton by special license here right away."

"It will matter a great deal to you one day, my boy. Every man in his heart longs for a son who'll grow up to be a better man than he is."

"Think of your future—your son's future. Will you make him a slave all his life—for your fancy now?"

"Think . . . think . . . think . . ."

"The white-and-gold clock ticked lightly. But the young man's brain was so sick and whirling that he couldn't think. He could only feel. He could only see swift pictures of his sweetheart, sitting across the table from him; Lilith, dancing feather-light in his arms, to magical, dream-haunted music. To give her up? Never to see her again? How could he do it? No, no!"

He faced his grandfather with fire, with resolution. "I can't do it, no matter what happens. That's all I have to say. The money's yours. Do what you damn please with it. I marry the girl I love!"

The old man gestured him to silence. "Wait a few minutes. My son, before you decide."

Then he remembered how gracefully Lilith had fitted into her life, how she had said she was a born sybarite. Would she face poverty with him? The future he had promised her had been all ease and luxury—on another man's money. How would she feel when she knew he was a pauper? . . . He glimpsed himself a poor man, dropped from his clubs because he couldn't pay the dues . . . trudging about in shabby clothes . . . looking for jobs he wasn't trained to hold . . . borrowing money from his friends . . . slipping down the scale . . . beaten . . . discouraged . . . humiliated.

Was it a wild, mad dream to think he could defy the old man and make Lilith happy in poverty? Suppose she threw them over when she knew the facts?

But, no, her eyes reproached him. His memory saw again a dell in the heart of the labyrinth, under the voodoo moon, haunted by ghost flowers and perfume and music. Lilith hadn't seemed to mind, in that mad moment in the labyrinth. And she had yielded joyously to those two days of love before he sailed. Was she . . . without scruples? Would she yield to some other man's caresses if he couldn't give her the wealth and beauty that she craved?

He gave a sharp cry and flung his hand against his forehead. The white-and-gold clock ticked quickly. "Time speeds away so fast!"

The old man lifted a haggard face to his. He looked suddenly older, frailer, a sick man. His voice was weak and heart-sick as he spoke.

"My son died. And the world hasn't been the same to me since. You are all I have left. I have never known how to tell you how I loved you . . ."

"You are my hope now . . . my dream . . . my all. If you dishonor me not even in the grave can I find peace!"

Tears stood in the dim old eyes. The gnarled, blue-veined hand that clutched the cane trembled.

Bill felt a sick nausea sweep over him. How could he stride to his happiness over the heart of an old man who had loved him so? He'd be like a murderer! Better to sacrifice himself, though he died for it!

His shoulders slumped, his whole body sagged, his voice was like that of a corpse as he cried, "You win! I'll—marry Sally!"

Miller-Jones Company New Corporate Name For A. B. C. Shoe Store. Well Known Shoe Firm Announces Change of Name and Lowered Prices.

The A. B. C. Chain Shoe Stores who have operated the Shoe Stores on W. Main st., have taken a forward step in the modern trend of retailing. Nearly every kind of business has felt the impelling urge of combination and merger in order to secure for its customers price advantages and great values. This movement in the channels of business has been met by the L. R. Lepird Company and A. B. C. Chain Stores Co. in the most approved and modern way.

ROSS KIRKPATRICK, Mgr.

For years plans have been in the making to tie up the source of supply and final distribution in stores for the purpose of eliminating all unnecessary costs of handling of merchandise and intermediate profits. This great economic ideal was the result not only of the urge of modern business but was also the dream of two men who desired that their manufactured product should reach the ultimate consumer at the very lowest possible cost. These two men have been manufacturing good shoes at moderate prices for the whole family for many, many years. Their new problem was to establish a retail division. With this thought in mind, a Chain of Shoe Stores was started in 1929 operating in Ohio under the name of the A. B. C. Shoe Company. At the same time a substantial interest was acquired in the already successful chain operated under the name L. R. Lepird & Company in Indiana, Michigan and Illinois. The operation of these two chains was continued for several years. Every phase of economical retailing was carefully analyzed and every possible saving effected.

Having this small beginning the two groups have grown to a total number of one hundred and five stores on and up to this date. A decision has been reached to unite these two chains into one great company, thereby effecting a host of savings that could be passed onto the ultimate consumer.

The name Miller-Jones was given to this new chain in honor of the two men who have been vitally interested in the "great family." Mr. A. F. Miller and Mr. J. E. Jones have seen their dream of years come true in the new Miller-Jones Company, and with it a renewed pledge from these two men to give greater values in the future than even have been given in the past. This pledge is made notwithstanding the fact that the L. R. Lepird and Company and the A. B. C. Stores have been giving outstanding shoe values to all their customers. As concrete evidence of this pledge, the Miller-Jones Company is about to announce new lowered prices for the same fine values that have been sold in these stores before. The Miller-Jones Company will carry a complete stock of Footwear for every member of the family. New spring styles have arrived, and the new styles are sparkling in their clean cut individuality and good taste. There are styles in abundance for every need of the family, whether for dress, service, or for comfort type Footwear. Complete stocks of Rubber Footwear are carried in season and the loveliest products of one of the finest hosiery mills in the country await the careful hosiery buyer at Miller-Jones. Back of this excellent array of fine merchandise is the constantly emphasized thought, their values must be unmatched at all times.

Mr. Kirkpatrick, who has been the Manager of the A. B. C. Shoe Store continues as the Manager of the Miller-Jones Company. Mr. Kirkpatrick is especially pleased with the beautiful new styles, the new lowered prices, and that the great possibilities of saving, all because of this merger to the hundreds of his customers.

MEMORIAL ART IS ON EXHIBIT HERE

Interesting Display Is Now Open To Public At Zenker Bros. Studio.

Since last Saturday, through all this week, including Saturday next Zenker Brothers are sponsoring a Memorial art exhibit at their studios, 124 E. Main-st. Circleville, and 238 E. Mound-st. Columbus.

During the past winter months they have been carving and manufacturing memorials in their facades, and grouping other memorials just received from the quarry centers, for an exhibit that has for its purpose the display of these memorials for public approval.

Some of the work exhibited is work that has been sold by them during the winter season and is displayed fully lettered and carved so that visitors may see the mode of memorial expression that friends and neighbors have used in their last tribute to their loved ones.

Many of the memorials have exquisite carving and well cut refined lettering which is applied by a special process, machinery for its application having been recently installed.

The studio is very beautifully decorated for the display and each memorial can be seen in its true beauty, in a surrounding that includes many helpful suggestions for the beautification of cemetery burial plots.

That the idea is being well received by the public is evidenced by the interested visitors who have so far visited the exhibit.

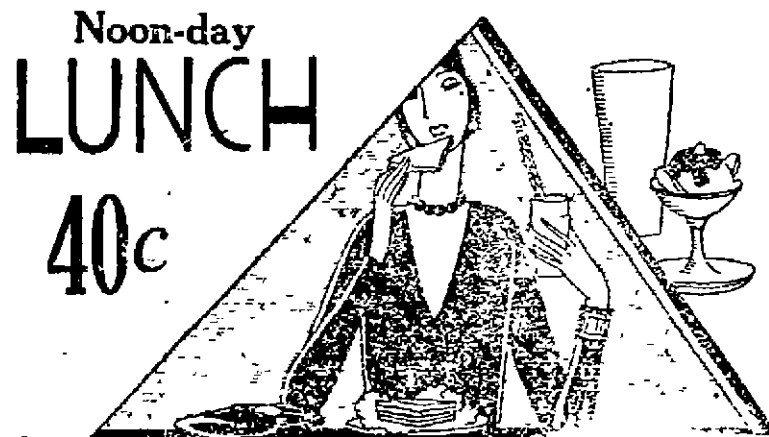

The studios are open from 8:30 in the morning until 5:30 in the afternoon and from 7 in the evening until 9 o'clock for the benefit of those who cannot avail themselves of the opportunity to visit the display except after working hours.

Mr. Yokum, the manager, emphasized that this is primarily an exhibit and that visitors will not be urged to make purchases, but that Zenker Brothers desire to show for public approval the work of the most skilled craftsmen in the field of memorial art.

Struck Whales "Drown"

As a general thing the whale, when struck by the whale's harpoon dives below the surface and soon reappears for air to be greeted with another harpoon of two which puts him out of business. Occasionally they do not reappear and the explanation made is that they are "drowned." Having received their death blow they reach the bottom but have not the strength to return and their huge, flapping water makes it all the more difficult, as they are deprived of the buoyancy of air, a quantity of it would impair to their bodies.

Noon-day LUNCH 40c

Not "St." Pattern

Among the many fine edifices erected by Christopher Wren as St. Vincent's, London, is a church street. It bears the date of 1687 and occupies the site of a church which was destroyed by fire.

The name of the saint to whom it is dedicated is not Patterns as might conceivably be supposed but just plain Margaret. The church owes its second name to a colony of pattern makers who formerly dwelt thereabouts.

St. Margaret was a young Christian convert of Antioch, in Pisidia who was condemned to be sawed alive by a dragon. But the cross she was wearing struck fast in the creature's throat and choked it.

Shark Good Eating

Shark meat has grown in favor among the native population of Bermuda until it is now their favorite delicacy.

More than 200 kinds of fish can be caught in the warm waters around Bermuda and all are edible. Fishermen find however that young sharks are most in demand. These average about four feet in length and are caught alive but beyond the six-mile coral reef the surrounds the islands.

MAKES OIL STRIKE

Harry M. Gordon, of Parkersburg, who married Miss Georgia Zander of Circleville, struck oil in a new field near Marietta, on St. Patrick's day. Mr. Gordon, who has drilled a number of wells before this one, says that this well will bring 100 barrels of oil a day. Machinery was attached immediately and the oil, which is of a very high grade is being hauled away.

Deadly Gas

The most dangerous property of carbon monoxide gas, apart from its poisonous qualities is the fact that it is colorless, odorless and tasteless. Consequently it is difficult to detect and when inhaled a very small percentage of this gas in the air is sufficient to cause death within a few minutes. This gas combines with the hemoglobin of the blood producing head ache and giddiness, then asphyxiation.

Certain tribes of the Kalahari desert bushmen are said to bury their sick while still alive, because their religious beliefs forbid the touching of human corpses. An other tribe has been found in the same section which was too low in the scale of civilization even to build huts to live in, preferring to live in holes made by anthems, which they enlarge by scooping out earth.

DRIVER WILL PILOT MEYER AUTO

Deacon Litz, Noted For Size and Speed, To Compete At Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 27—The car in which Louis Meyer won the sixteenth annual International Sweepstakes, otherwise known as the Indianapolis 500-mile race, is entered again this year for the seventeenth running of this greatest automobile race in the world.

But instead of the rather slight Meyer in the pilot's seat the picture changes and at the wheel will be one of the biggest men that ever won places and prizes on the roaring roads of America.

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway Corporation has received the entry of Deacon Litz and the Deacon is no willow when it comes to speed. In fact the Deacon could stand in front of Louis Meyer and unless Litz chose to disclose the fact by stepping from behind his screen no one might ever know that he was there. Litz tips the weight beam at something around 225 pounds. The cockpit of the car which Meyer drove to victory in 1928 has to be completely altered to permit the Deacon to get his ponderous frame behind its wheel.

ENTERS IN FLORIDA.
The Deacon's entry was written at Daytona Beach on the day Major H. O. D. Segrave set the world's record at 231.36 miles an hour. T. E. (Pop) Myers, vice president and general manager of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Corporation was at Daytona Beach in his official capacity as a member of the contest board of American Automobile association and acted as chief timer. The Deacon was there drawn by the lure of speed.

Litz is no stranger to the Indianapolis course, having driven a car in the 1928 race. He had been driving the dusty tracks of the country for years and only last year emerged from the haze to seek success on the larger speedways. He bought the Meyer car the middle of last summer and campaigned it the rest of the year. He holds the record for having circled the Atlantic City board track faster in competition than any other driver. He has never won first in a big race, but until this year has never had a car capable of doing so, his last year's mount being a rebuilt 122 cubic inch car cut down to a 91 1/2 inch motor, never a very successful procedure. The race this year is on Thursday, May 30, and the entry list has in it the name of every big league racing driver in America today. This will be the last year for the small cars now in use on the speedways, and the last year for cars with superchargers, a completely new specification sheet having been written for the 500-mile race in 1930.

NEW DRIVER WILL PILOT MEYER AUTO

Deacon Litz, Noted For Size and Speed, To Compete At Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 27 — The car in which Louis Meyer won the sixteenth annual International Sweepstakes, otherwise known as the Indianapolis 500-mile race, is entered again this year for the seventeenth running of this greatest automobile race in the world.

But instead of the rather slight Meyer in the pilot's seat the picture changes and at the wheel will be one of the biggest men that ever won places and prizes on the roaring roads of America.

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway Corporation has received the entry of Deacon Litz and the Deacon is no willow when it comes to speed. In fact the Deacon could stand in front of Louis Meyer and unless Louis chose to disclose the fact by stepping from behind his screen no one might ever know that he was there. Litz tips the weight beam at something around 225 pounds. The cockpit of the car which Meyer drove to victory in 1928 has to be completely altered to permit the Deacon to get his ponderous frame behind its wheel.

WHEN YOU YEARN FOR LOVED SURROUNDINGS

Of All the Difficult Ailments to Heal, Soul-Longing from Any Cause is Hardest, Says Dr. Copeland, Urging that it Not Be Treated Lightly.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ALL the world took a sympathetic interest in the welfare of King George, of England. His modesty and goodness of heart apparently endeared him to everybody. The medical bulletins recording the progress of his illness, were read by millions.

A few weeks ago the King was removed from the palace in London to the south of England. I was interested in this particular statement in the newspaper account of his transfer: "The location for King George's recuperation was chosen largely for the mental benefit it was hoped he would derive from its proximity to the sea, which he loves, and where he was trained as a sailor when a prince."

Have you ever been homesick? Did you ever long for the scenes and friends of your childhood? When you have been ill with a fever, did you yearn for the cold water from "Palmer's spring," or some deep well, where you were wont to satisfy your thirst in the days of long ago?

Of course you have. I have—many and many a time. The King's doctors were wise. By stimulating the memories and emotions, they were giving their royal patient a tonic better than anything that comes in bottles or capsules.

Our Christian Science friends, whether we agree with all their doctrines or not, have certainly given emphasis to a great truth in insisting upon wiping out worry and mental disturbance. "As he thinketh in his heart, so is he," said the Wise Man.

We are really what we are in our hearts and souls. When our surroundings harmonize with our inner feelings we are happy. When they do not, we are restless and miserable.

One of the most important things to do for the sick person and one of the most important things the well person can do for himself, is to have the surroundings and associates agreeable as possible.

But do not misunderstand me: I would not have you fret and fume over your surroundings if you are powerless to change them. Perhaps the highest test of absolute sanity of mind is the power of adjustment to conditions as they exist. There is something wrong with you if you are in constant battle with things as they are.

It is your duty to yourself and to those who love you, to keep sweet and calm and content as may be with existing conditions. You must strive of course to improve things, but don't fret and fume, if you find it out of the question to make them better. Try to adjust yourself to things as they are, if they cannot be bettered.

All the difficult ailments to heal, the hardest is broken-heartedness, home-sickness, or soul-yearning from any cause. It is our duty, as members of the family, as friends and neighbors, to lighten the burdens of those who suffer in this manner. Do not permit yourself to think lightly of such suffering as I have described. It is a real factor to be regarded.

Answer to Health Queries
L. C. Q.—What can be done to keep from growing taller?
2.—How can I reduce around the hips and abdomen?

A.—Nothing. When you have reached your full growth, you will stop growing taller and will develop generally.
2.—Exercise and proper diet should accomplish results.

Mental Processes

A mother was scolding her little daughter into taking some medicine that evidently was rather unpleasant taste, saying:

"I don't like to take medicine any better than you do, but I just make up my mind to do it, and then I do."

"Yes, mother, and I just make up my mind that I won't take it and I don't." The little girl won her point.

Flags at Olympic Games

The flag used for the Olympic games has an arrangement of five circles on a white or neutral background. The three upper circles are blue, black and red, do not touch but they are joined by two lower circles of yellow and green, which in turn do not touch each other. The blue circle represents Europe; the black, Africa; the red America; the yellow, Asia, and the green, Australasia.

Great Painter Gasp

W. P. Frith, royal academician, was painting in the country one summer, living in a cottage owned by a nice old woman who often used to watch him paint. There was a rush-bottomed chair which he used for his work and to which he came quite attached. It wasn't worth more than 50 cents—a lot of money in those days—and when the dear old lady 5 shillings ($1.20) for it.

"But she said 'No,' chuckled Frith, relating the incident to Julian Hawthorne, "she couldn't think of robbing me, but she'd be perfectly content if I'd take the chair in exchange for one of my little 'pictures'."

Which took Frith's breath away for a minute—the little "pictures" would easily sell for a thousand dollars or more—but he got out of it somehow and carried off the chair, too.—Kansas City Times.

of an Old French Race

The Basques of the Pyrenees section of France are an old race which has outlived the Roman empire, the Dark Ages, feudalism and monarchy. They are thrifty, hard working, farmers and fishermen with a simple system of very local democratic self-government. They are strong, simple, warm-hearted physically sound and comely, and above all life-loving. While other races and social organizations around them have risen and fallen they have never had a king, a tyrant, an aristocracy or a revolution. They seem to be very religious, and although they are not blooded and impulsive, they have never taken a single aggressive step against a neighbor in war fare.—Ray F. Hemdrix

Versatile Couple Entertain Patrons Of Lecture Course

A happily married couple, the Emerson Winters Co., utilized their sense of humor and keen understanding of the comedies and tragedies of married life, to provide some fine humor in their program at the memorial hall Tuesday night. This was the next to the final number of the Circleville lecture course. The last will be a lecture by Dr. E. J. Powell on Tuesday, May 7.

Mr. Winters was entertaining with his pianologue. His story about the boy shooting a red bird was very realistic. He also played the accompaniment for Mrs. Winters, a remarkable whistler. She played her own accompaniment for her bird imitations of the cardinal, pee-wee, robin, owl and mocking bird, which were especially clever.

Most of the humor of the evening was in a skit in which both Mr. and Mrs. Winters appeared but in which only she did any

ROY T. BELL

Mr. Bell, a former resident of Circleville, died last week at the Neil House, Columbus, from an attack of heart disease. His home was in Youngstown, and he had gone to Columbus with his wife and daughter, Martha, to enter his son, Donald, in the second semester at Ohio State University. He was a member of the Youngstown Torch Club, a director of the Youngstown Board of Trade, a Mason and one of the three members of the Ohio State board conducting examinations for certified accountants.

It was an episode in the life of every married woman. A beautiful bracelet from the erring husband, soon smoothed all her cares away, and they lived happily ever after until he stayed out late again.

There was also another one act play, which took place in a small railroad station and which had a telegraph tapper and a clock which made several months fly past in no time. Mrs. Winters was excellent in this performance, taking the part of the telegraph girl who had faith in a wandering son. The wandering boy finally got to New York, made his fortune and returned for the girl who had given him his chance.
